

Title: A Short History of Pakistan

Pakistan was created on August 14, 1947, after the partition of British India. The demand for a separate homeland for Muslims was led by Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah.

He envisioned Pakistan as a country where Muslims could freely practice their religion and culture.

The new country faced major challenges from the beginning — a shortage of resources, migration of millions of refugees, and administrative difficulties. Despite these hardships, Pakistan quickly established its government institutions.

Liaquat Ali Khan became the first Prime Minister of Pakistan, while Muhammad Ali Jinnah served as the first Governor-General.

In 1956, Pakistan adopted its first constitution, officially becoming the Islamic Republic of Pakistan.

The country experienced periods of democracy and military rule throughout its history.

In 1971, East Pakistan separated and became the independent country of Bangladesh after a civil war.

Today, Pakistan is known for its rich culture, strong military, and significant role in South Asian politics.